ABOUT ME

I would not have believed you if you had told me all that would happen to me in my life. A singer-songwriter who homeschooled her children for 23 years, I thought faith in God would mean a problem-free life. Yes, I actually thought that.

But knowing Jesus does not give us a pass on suffering. In my pursuit of comfort and relief in the midst of the most painful moments of my life, I found that true comfort is only found in Jesus and His precious living word in a lost and fallen world.

Following the revelation that my husband of 14 years was a sex offender, my faith was severely tested. My 5 children and I struggled to make sense of our suffering, but ultimately, it was God's word that was our comfort and our hope in Christ that helped us to heal.

But no pain is ever wasted. God has inspired me to write books and songs that have healed my soul and many others. Traveling to speak, teach, and/or lead worship for conferences or retreats is a sweet spot of joy for me as I see God use the lessons He has so graciously shown me from His word to help heal others, too.

As part of the road to healing, God sent me back to school, where I pursued a Master's degree and then a PhD in Biblical Exposition so I could know Him and His word more and faithfully share deep truths from His word as I traveled or published. Having served in the church as a Director of Family Ministries, worship leader, and leader of women's studies, my heart is to minister to families and women as they seek to live for God. I'd love to come minister to your group and help you discover the greatest joy and peace on this side of Heaven.

Let me know what topic God is laying on your heart and let's pray and plan an amazing event all for the glory of God!

All for Jesus,
